Tosso's Concert last evening was a decided uccess. The old veteran was himself! and played his magic violin with the rest and touch of "thirty-five years ago!" His valuable assistants, Madame Rive, Miss Staub, Miss Sophia Werner and Worrall, were all very much applauded. Just before the concert closed, O. M. Mitchell, Esq., at the request of many of our first bitizens, made a few remarks, and then offered a resolution that "all who were in favor of having this delightful musical entertainment (to which we have listened with so much pleasure) repeated on this night week, will rise!" ABOUT seven o'clock last evening, John Finton, a notorious rowdy, went into the Sons of Harmony Coffee House, on Third street near Sycamore, and called for some supper. The landlord, Tom Davis, told him that supper was over, and that he could not be accommodated. LAW REPORT. SUPERIOR COURT.

Anderson, guardian of Alvaretta Anderson, a minor, va. Harriet A. Betts, et. al. Petition for partition. The question involved the construction of the will of O. C. Betts, deceased, which gave the control of the whole estate of the testator (amounting to about $15,0,000) to the widow until the oldest daughter, Emma, became twenty-one years of age, and then if she desired partition it was to be made. The widow refused to take under the will, and elected to take under the law. One of the children named in the will died before the testator, and another was bornefore bits death. Emma married the plaintiff, and died before she was eighteen years of age, leaving one child.

It was held by Judge Storer that, under the 41st section of the Statute in relation to wills the child born after the will took the same share of the estate as those named in the will; that upon the death of Emma her portion of the estation to wills the child born after the will took the same share of the estate as those named in the will; that upon the death of Emma her portion of the estation to wills the child born after the will took the same share of the estate as those named in the will; that upon the death of Emma her portion of the estate descended to her heir, who was entitled to partition thereof.

canal by the mark. The Courier says?

The Dunleith, with a beary freight for Nashville, started out of the canal about six o'clock yesterday morning, when the strong current forced her head foremost on the bar at Sand Island, and in awinging round, she struck the after post of the Lobanch, tied to the Kentucky shore just below the old warehouse, and her water wheel was broken off close to her hull including the cylinder timbers. The locat drifted some distance down to the Portland landing, where the ferry bout Excelsior took hold of the cripplet boat and towed her to the shore. This mishap will cost the owners of the boat about $1,500, in addition to the detentions. The water wheel, shaft, and pitton the fiver.

The Lebanon was considerably damaged by the collision, having her guard and fantall broken. Heretofore the channel followed, or ran close along the side of Sand Island at the foot of the island. Now the bar extends nearly half across the channel to the rocky reef, along the Kentucky, down past the old warehouse, with a current as swift as the rapids of the falls, and all the power of a stout hoat is required to stem the current. Several boats, especially the atern-wheelers, have not power enough to cope with this mighty tide, and have been compelled to succumb in one way or another.

Pittsburg.—The Dispatch of yesterday says:
The weather continues clear and warm, with indications yesterday evening of another shower. The river has receded to three feet nine inches scant, with less than three feet on Giass Honse. The long continued bigh water has filled up the channel on the bars, and the receding river is again slowly cutting them out for a day or two longer, and while this process continues, the difficulties in navigation will not be materially increased. On the wharf busiless was not much changed. Shipping continues at about the usual rate for the season. There were no arrivals yesterday. The Vixen for St. Louis, and Harmonia for Nashville, cle ared with moderate trips. At the wharf, yesterday, twenty-three steamboats and eleven tow-boats were tied up or waiting for trips.

Cline from Memphis, on Thursday last, that soon after leaving Memphis, an officer of that boat kicked one of the deck-hands overboard, and he was drowned. The perpetrator of the inhuman act could not be found out, further than that he was one of the officers. The Nashville American has the following:

The Cuba arrived last night in a disabled condition, aving met with a serious accident at Hyde's Ferry reaking a wrist, bursting her cylinder and aimost outrely ruining her larboard engine. The Ella will ake the place of the Cuba in the Paducah trade.

At London, on the 7th inst., intelligence wa hourly expected of a serious battle between the contending forces, but nothing of importance
